Math 24 & Chess Club

We've been having a great time @ Math 24 meetings! I've enjoyed getting to know all of the members, regular and sporadic! Thank you, also, to all of the parents who've been helping, especially Mrs. Rose and Mr. Kanakkanatt. We'll have two more meetings on Wednesdays, March 3rd and March 17th. Then we'll switch to Chess Club. Same format: alternating Wednesdays from 3:15 – 4:15 (my classroom), starting on March 31st. Participants ideally have some prior knowledge of chess. (Once we get rolling, we may modify to include teaching chess.) All ages/grades are welcome. I'm working on getting assistance from some St. Charles Alumni who are in high school chess clubs as I've never been involved in one personally! I will also need at least one other adult at all meetings. If you are interested in helping or you have a student interested, let me know.

DSHA

presents The Triangle Factory Fire Project.

Christopher Piehler's, The Triangle Factory Fire Project recreates one of New York City's most horrific disasters and the positive effects the tragedy had on working conditions, wages, and women's rights. On March 25, 1911, the shirtwaist factory which occupied the top three floors of the Asch Building caught fire. In just half an hour the three floors were completely engulfed in flames. Immigrant workers, mostly women, found themselves trapped and forced with either succumbing to the fire or jumping from the 9th story windows. The fire took 146 lives and was the worst workplace disaster in New York City until September 11, 2001. The play demonstrates the pain and struggle caused by the fire and reenacts the heated indictment of the factory owners for keeping exit doors locked, as well as conveying the spirit of hope and the need for change that came as a result of the horrible tragedy. March 11-14, 2010 Thurs-Sat, 7:00 p.m.; Sunday, 2:00 p.m.

DSHA's Robert and Marie Hansen Family Fine Arts Theatre
